THE PERIPATETIC LIBRARIAN.

By this is meant the Book Agent:—not all of that profession to be sure. For there are some who still retain a proper respect for the courtesies of life. Such an one was the young lady, who called upon me during the past week, too modest indeed and ladylike to succeed in her endeavor to obtain a few subscribers, that she might enter college and fit herself for usefulness in the profession of the teacher. It was impossible not to depart from a general rule long since adopted, not to give the recommendation usually sought of the clergyman,—a rule from which, this was only the third, or fourth, variation in a large number of cases. For such as she, especially when the book is worthy of commendation, one cannot but feel a great deal of sympathy. But for the average agent, bold and impudent, who meets you at the door, as though he were a bearer of despatches from absent friends, who carefully concealing the insignia of his trade in his capacious pockets, announces his name with an air, which seems to say, "I have called upon important business to-day," only to thrust into your face, the moment you give him entrance to your house, some flashy, crime-breeding inside view of a Michigan State Prison, as did one of them to me not long since—a greasy specimen of a man with rubber boots drawn over his pants and covered with mud, and slouchy hat, which seemed to have acted as a kind of top-dressing to his unshorn, unkempt hair, who told me as he stood fragrant with the odors of the long smothered pipe, in the middle of my parlor, to which Bridget, knowing the democratic character of the house, had shown him that he would consider my recommendation worth a copy of the book, what language dead, or alive, will furnish the proper designation!

Hardly less objectionable, though neater in dress, and more prepossessing in personal appearance, is the man, who announces himself as Mr. —— from ——, and, at the same time by a nod and forward movement, as though he heard the questions, which in your own thoughts you were asking: "Who is he?" "Shall I let him in?" and would assure you of his right to our audience, forces an entrance, only to bring forth the distasteful subscription book, and steal an hour or more of your time in the effort to convince you, that your salvation and the salvation of your children and children's children unto many generations, depend upon your possession of this particular book. Sometimes a little pious talk is thrown in, as in the case of a man who recently "gushed" for over an hour in my parlor, and then, because he saw it was not possible to sell the book, made the base proposition to give me a copy if I would only put my name upon his subscription list.—Sometimes the extent and depth of the information upon the subject they present is amazing, until one adopts the test of that adept in the knowledge of human nature, Oliver Wendell Holmes who, surprised at the fluency with which a certain person discoursed on various subjects, but upon the expedient of testing him upon some topic which, coming later than A B and C in the Encyclopedia, which he ascertained the man had subscribed for, had not yet been published. For weeks such a man pursued me. He called at the house, he met me at the post office; if I felt a hand upon my shoulder, as I walked the streets, or stood conning some book in the library, I was sure to find, on turning about, this importunate widower. Finally I could stand it no longer, and said to him as he asked me again for a notice of his book, that I had found it very deficient in a certain direction, for instance I had been studying the Elizabethan age of English literature, and had a long list of names not one of which could be found in his Encyclopedia, while in that which he thought wholly inferior, almost all could be found. "Elizabethan," said he, "what's that?"

But it is the women of our homes, who suffer the most from these peripatetic nuisances. As if they thought they were sure of their victim if they could only obtain an audience, these agents take special pains to call upon them. How often I have heard the remark, "I could not get rid of him in any other way, so I bought the book." One with whom I have had some acquaintance—a man who gravely propounds to his victim the conundrum, "How old was Isaac, when about to be offered up," and then turns to his book to see if the guesses are right, has obtained not a few subscribers, simply because the gentle and courteous ladies, upon whom he called, knew not how to meet rudeness with rudeness, and impudence with impudence.

But what shall be done in self-protection? It is not of course possible for all of us to copy the device of the man of whom Mr. Warner in his charming Back Log Studies speaks, who along and on both sides of the path leading to his door, constructed a neat iron fence, each railing of which was a pipe, connected with the hydrant, through which, to the wonder and discomfiture of the book agents, he could turn the water, when he saw his plague coming. But I have seriously thought of giving to the next man, who cannot take the courteous answer to his request, "I do not want your book, sir," but who persists in worrying me with his importunity, and stealing my time by his refusal to leave, a letter of introduction to the City Marshal in terms like the following:

MY DEAR SIR:—The bearer of this note has annoyed me beyond endurance, by his importunities to buy his book. He is either very poor, or he is not in his right mind. For both of these classes of unfortunate people we have abundant provision either at the Alms House, or the Insane Hospital. From the fact that he thinks that my salvation and that the salvation of my family depend upon the purchase of his book, I incline to the opinion that he is of unsound mind. But you will be able upon consultation with the proper authorities to determine, and to make good provision for his truly pitiable condition.—Cor. Zion's Advocate.

THE SYRACUSE CALAMITY.—The following account is given of the terrible calamity which occurred at Syracuse, N. Y., Wednesday night, by the falling of the floors of the Baptist church, in which fourteen persons were killed, and fully one hundred injured, many of them seriously:

The occasion of the gathering last night was a festival given by the ladies of the church, and a concert by the "Little old folks." At the rear of the church are the Sunday school rooms, occupying the first floor, and the church parlor occupying the second floor.

This part of the edifice was in use for the festival and concert. At the time of the accident supper was being served in the central parlor, which had been prepared for the occasion with tables, &c. The room, which was forty feet square, was filled with people, the session room below being deserted save by a few persons. The number in the upper room is variously estimated at from 200 to 250 ... persons.

At the time ... [illegible] ... the scene within the parlor was one of happy enjoyment. Without a sign of warning the floor suddenly sank beneath, and in an instant the happy throng found themselves buried in a mass of struggling humanity, intermixed with falling timbers, furniture, etc., and in utter darkness, the gas having been extinguished by breaking of the gas pipes.

The descent of the floor was accompanied with a terrible crashing of timbers, and from the endangered human beings went up horrible cries for aid. An instant after the fearful descent had been made all was still as the grave, but immediately after heart-rending appeals for help were to be heard from hundreds of those in agony.

Immediately after persons were seen issuing from the doors and windows, which were smashed out by the frightened people, and an alarm was sounded. The uninjured within the church who were able to free themselves from the mass began at once to assist in rescuing others. The firemen and police were quickly on hand and labored nobly in the work of rescue. Entrance to the church was at once stopped and none allowed to enter it except those engaged in taking out the inmates.

The scene within the building was terrible, and that without the edifice was heart-rending indeed—fathers and mothers searching for their children, husbands looking for their wives, wives inquiring for husbands, brothers for sisters and children for their parents, of whose fate all were uncertain and in dread.—Quietly but rapidly the work of extricating the people was carried on by the aid of lanterns, a large number of which were secured, while some busied themselves with shoring up the slanting sections of the floor.

Many others were aiding the men, women and children to free themselves, and as fast as the living and dead were rescued they were passed out through the windows and doors, when ready hands assisted to convey the dangerously injured and dead to the physicians' offices and neighboring houses.—The work was vigorously but slowly prosecuted, and before midnight the last of the living and dead had been taken out.

The excitement without the church was terrible, and as each body either dead or severely injured was being carried to the adjoining houses the mass surged back and forth, all terribly anxious to ascertain who it was, and whether dead or alive. At the height of the excitement not less than ten thousand people were crowded into Montgomery and Jefferson streets, and in adjoining premises.

The excitement at the scene did not subside till long after midnight, at which hour the dead had been either removed to their homes or various undertaking rooms, about which excited groups were to be seen till two o'clock this morning discussing the terrible details.

The floor, having no props beneath it, sank in the form of the letter V. The most of the deaths were caused by the falling timber of the truss, some having been smothered by the plastering. The floors of the church were supported originally by iron pillars.

A short time ago, the church building committee, with the consent, as they say, of the architect, removed the iron pillars. The result was the calamity of Tuesday night. The truss was very imperfectly constructed, besides being spliced. The most prominent builders in the city declare that it was rotten. It was put up green, and has the dry rot.

Benj Smith aged about sixty-five years died suddenly in Fairfield village, Tuesday morning of heart disease. He was a well known and highly respected citizen.

Mrs. Ruth Mayhew, late matron of the orphan asylum at Bath, died in Rockland Tuesday night. She was connected with the sanitary commission during the war, and many soldiers will cherish her memory with gratitude.

The mysterious disappearance of the young lady in Woolwich has been cleared up. She was taken either to Bath or Wiscasset, and retained against her will, but has returned home, having been left near there by the ruffian that carried her off. It is to be hoped that the miscreant may be brought to justice.

Hartley Green of Dead River, on the 21st inst., set four bear traps about half a mile—In four days he visited his traps, six miles from his home, and found a bear in each of three of the traps, weighing about 200 pounds each. Three days later he took another, and three days later still another.

A train, Tuesday, was crossing the Sheepscot river one of the breakmen discovered a dead body lying on some rocks in the river, having apparently been washed up by the tide. The face was badly eaten by fishes and presented a ghastly appearance. On the arrival of the train at Newcastle a telegram was sent back to Wiscasset notifying the authorities of the fact, who secured the body.—It proved to be the body of Mr. Huff of Edgecomb, who was drowned four weeks ago Monday.

The Delaware strawberry crop this year has been the largest ever known. According to the Wilmington Commercial the shipments, including Saturday, aggregate 607 car loads. Each car load averages about 250 crates and each crate about 40 quarts, so the grand total of the crop of the Peninsular for the season is estimated at about 7,170,000 quarts. This is the heaviest crop ever marketed and will probably be the largest for years to come. It is about half as large again as the crop of last year, and yet, according to the Commercial, it is doubtful if it realized as much money. The reason is that the numerous heavy rains gave the berries an acid flavor and so softened them that they went into the market in an inferior condition, and therefore commanded less price. The crop has proven so unsatisfactory to the cultivators that many of them are plowing up their fields with the intention of devoting them to other crops. Some of the growers have scarcely realized expenses, and a few have been actually brought into debt. The moral which the Commercial draws is that success for farmers lies only in a diversity of crops.

GRASSHOPPERS IN IOWA. As in many other cases there are two sides to the story of the grasshopper plague in Iowa. A paragraph recently published in these columns gave a somewhat gloomy view of the situation. It appears from other accounts than those upon which that paragraph was based, that while the grasshoppers are undoubtedly doing mischief in some localities, the plague is by no means so general as reported. The Cedar Rapids Republican has instituted inquiries in regard to the matter, and replies from five different counties indicate that the crops have done excellently well so far, the grasshoppers doing little or no damage. It is intimated that the meaning of the grasshopper song will be revealed when Congress passes the bill for an extension of time in which the homesteaders are to pay for their land in Iowa, thus exempting them from taxes for several years longer.

FROM UTAH. A Salt Lake despatch says There has been intense excitement here over Poland's bill regulating the Judiciary of this Territory. When the first telegram was received announcing its passage through the Senate the Gentile population were perfectly jubilant. Later in the day when the amendments of Senator Sargent were learned, the Mormons were measurably delighted. A proposition was made to burn the effigy of Sargent in the public streets, but better counsel prevailed. The bill, however much it disappoints everybody, will open the Federal courts and give a new impetus to business. The Mormons are gratified with the ... [illegible] ... as it will ... [illegible] ... THE BEECHER-TILTON SCANDAL.

It is with the greatest reluctance that we refer again to the deplorable scandal concerning the most distinguished of American clergymen. Such topics we sedulously avoid when it is possible, but in this instance the world-wide reputation of the person assailed, and the publicity given to imputations calculated to injure the cause of religion, render it impossible for us to ignore the subject, without seeming to give a tacit assent to the distorted statements and malicious deductions of those who exult over the discovery of spots on a Christian character. It matters little what or who Mr. Tilton is, so long as his public accusations affect the moral standing of one who stands foremost among the public men of our day, and the recent gathering of a great council of churches affords proof that the effects of the scandal are felt far beyond the circle of Mr. Beecher's personal friends. We have believed it a duty which Mr. Beecher owed to his church and which his church owed to the cause of religion, to meet these damaging charges squarely and if possible set them at rest forever; but as Mr. Tilton's letter presents only one side of the case it is but just that we should accompany it with a statement of facts to which he does not refer.

It had been known for some time that trouble of some kind existed between Mr. Beecher and Messrs. Bowen and Tilton, members of his church, resulting in the withdrawal of the latter, but the scandal was first given a wide publicity by the notorious Victoria Woodhull, who purported to give the confession of both Mr. Beecher and Tilton. The latter had recently been on intimate terms with this shameless woman and had published her biography in terms of the most fulsome adulation over his own signature. The revolting story printed by this creature claimed to give the detailed statement to her by Mr. Tilton of his knowledge that his wife had been led by Mr. Beecher to pursue a course of wanton infidelity. It will be noticed that in his letter Tilton fails to make such an explicit charge and that while vaguely alluding to an "offense which he forbears to name," he denounces the Woodhull story as a "wicked and horrible scandal" which he earnestly "endeavored to suppress." His own words, therefore, would indicate that those who have jumped at the conclusion that his mysterious charges were based upon such a belief of criminality as that alleged by the Woodhull woman, have been over hasty. And on this point we may cite the statement of the Brooklyn Eagle, that Tilton's accusation is that Mr. Beecher made improper overtures to the wife of the former during a pastoral call, meeting an indignant repulse; that his wife subsequently informed him and that with Mr. Moulton he confronted Mr. Beecher with the charge. It will be seen that such a complaint opens a much wider field for misconception or slander than the more direct and positive charge hitherto attributed to Tilton. And it is equally obvious that such a complaint, even if unfounded, might be extremely difficult to disprove. Mr. Tilton and his wife have both been credited with very erratic notions of social economy, and on a mere question of veracity, involving personal morals, Mr. Beecher's life-long reputation would give him a great advantage over the eulogist of Woodhull and the avowed advocate of free love.

But whatever may be the nature of Tilton's accusation, it is proper to remember that in March, 1873 publicity was given to a tripartite covenant between H. C. Bowen, Tilton, and Mr. Beecher, in which Bowen declared that in giving credit to tales and innuendoes respecting Mr. Beecher "I did him wrong; therefore I disavow all the charges and imputations that have been attributed to me as having been made by me against Henry Ward Beecher. I declare fully and without reserve that I know nothing which should prevent me from [extending him my most cordial friendship, confidence and Christian fellow-ship." And in the same document Mr. Beecher's present accuser said:

Second, And I, Theodore Tilton, do of my free will and friendly spirit toward Henry C. Bowen and Henry Ward Beecher, hereby covenant and agree that I will never again repeat, by word of mouth or otherwise, any of the allegations, or imputations, or innuendoes contained in my letter hereunto annexed, or any other injurious imputations or allegations suggested by or growing out of these, and that I will never again bring up or hint at any cause of difference or ground of complaint heretofore existing between said H. C. Bowen and myself, or the said H. W. Beecher.

It is noticeable that Mr. Beecher's part of this covenant contains no intimation of guilt or concession of having wronged either of the others, except a retraction of any possible unfriendly remark concerning them. Later, Mr. Beecher addressed a letter to a Brooklyn paper distinctly alluding to the charges as slanders, and affirming that another than Mr. Tilton was the originator of them. And on the 30th of June, 1873, in answer to the threats of the Woodhull to print letters of his concerning certain infamous stories against him, Mr. Beecher published a card in the Brooklyn Eagle, giving his "cordial assent" to the publication of any of his letters, and concluding with this explicit declaration:

"In this connection, and at this time, I will only add that the stories and rumors which for some time past have been circulated about me are grossly untrue; and I stamp them in general and in particular, as utterly false."

Here we have the square denial of Mr. Beecher on the one side, and the elaborate but very mystical indictment by Tilton on the other. And our later despatches give a more startling phase to the subject by the report that Mr. Beecher expressly disavows ever having written such a letter as the one which forms the strongest weapon of Tilton's assault, and asserts his entire ability to vindicate his honor.

We think that all thoughtful readers will justify us in treating of this most unpleasant theme for the purpose of showing that a suspension of judgment is demanded, before a reputation which is dear to hundreds of thousands and which is of inestimable value to our country, to humanity and to religion, shall be given up as lost. The time has certainly come when the duty which Mr. Beecher owes to the whole world is paramount to any consideration of personal feelings, and if he would retain his influence he must promptly meet his accusers face to face and foot to foot. While the charges against him emanate from so doubtful a source as the pen of Theodore Tilton and meet with the denial of Henry Ward Beecher, the public will not render a verdict upon a one-sided statement; but the friends to whom he is reported as intending to refer the decision of his future course, should urge the necessity of a prompt, unshrinking and thorough investigation of the whole subject. The unqualified vindication of his character would be hailed with gratitude throughout the civilized world.

THE POSTMASTER-GENERALSHIP.

[From the Boston Advertiser.]

The intelligence that the President has tendered the office of Postmaster-General, made vacant by the resignation of Mr. Creswell, to Hon. Eugene Hale, will be received with genuine satisfaction by all who are acquainted with the record of that gentleman's career.

Mr. Hale is a fair representative of the integrity and ability which the good people of Maine seek after in their Congressional delegation, and which they have secured in so many conspicuous instances. * * * *

Mr. Hale's career in Congress has not been of the noisy and demonstrative order, but he has been vigilant and faithful and has rendered substantial service. He took an active part in naval affairs, and in all measures having for their object the encouragement of the shipping interests, and was conspicuous in the advocacy of the Navigation act, which passed the last Congress. In these and other matters, without subordinating his allegiance to the national interests, he has shown all due regard to his constituency. He is popular in his district, and although the Liberal Republicans made strenuous efforts to defeat him at his last election, he received, as we have stated, a majority of nearly four thousand votes. During the session of Congress, which has just closed, he has served upon the Committee of Appropriations, of which Gen. Garfield is Chairman. To the responsible duties of his new position he will bring a broad experience gained in his professional and public life, and, what is better, a reputation unsullied by a breath of suspicion or distrust. It is certainly most creditable to New England that the President has selected one of the rising young men of this section.

PERSONAL. A letter from Hon. S. F Hersey informs us that he began to gain in flesh and strength while at Atlantic City, gaining half a pound per day, and he hopes in a few months to be in better physical condition than he has been for several years. The General is now at Gloucester, Mass., where he will remain a few weeks, the climate at the seashore having proved very favorable to his recovery. Aside from the other unpleasant features of his late severe illness, the General feels a keen disappointment at his interference with his Congressional duties, and a desire to serve his constituents while in the enjoyment of health induces him to accept a renomination. We are sure that the warm assurances of support received from every part of the district will be very gratifying to our Representative.

When the question of Reciprocity was discussed, a few weeks ago, the Portland Press warmly advocated such a measure. Like Artemas Ward, who was "willin' to sacrifice all his fust wife's relashuns" in the cause of his country, our neighbor was ready to offer up the lumber of the East, with a view to increased Canadian traffic at the Seaport. But, on a closer inspection, it discovered that the treaty proposed to virtually throw open our coasting trade to British vessel owners, and, as considerable tonnage is owned in Portland, that would never do. Our neighbor now takes credit for opposition to the treaty, and we think it is on the right track.

THE SENATE VOTE ON CIVIL SERVICE. When the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill came from the House with a section repealing the Civil Service act, the Senate Committee proposed an amendment striking out that section, and appropriating $15,000 to carry out the purposes of the act. After full explanation, this amendment was adopted by the Senate, 32 to 16, as follows:

Yeas—Messrs. Anthony, Bayard, Boutwell, Buckingham, Cooper, Davis, Dennis, Edmunds, Fenton, Frelinghuysen, Goldthwaite, Gorden, Hager, Hamilton of Maryland, Hamlin, Howe, Kelley, McCreery, Merrimon, Morrill of Maine, Morrill of Vermont, Norwood, Oglesby, Ransom, Sargent, Schurz, Scott, Stevenson, Wadleigh, Washburn, Windom and Wright—32.

Nays—Messrs. Carpenter, Chandler, Clayton, Conover, Flanagan, Hamilton of Texas, Harvey, Hitchcock, Ingalls, Mitchell, Patterson, Pease, Pratt, Robertson, Spencer and Tipton—16.

Absent—Messrs. Alcorn, Allison, Bogy, Boreman, Brownlow, Cameron, Conkling, Cragin, Dorsey, Ferry of Connecticut, Ferry of Michigan, Gilbert, Johnston, Jones, Lewis, Logan, Morton, Ramsey, Saulsbury, Sherman, Sprague, Stewart, Stockton, Thurman and West—25.

The House insisting on the repeal, and the Senate refusing to consent, the matter went to a conference committee, where it was finally compromised by striking out all reference to the subject, leaving the law as before, but without a new appropriation. The Commission has $10,000 still on hand, which must last at least till next session.

THE MAINE DEMOCRACY. The amusing declaration for Free Trade by the Maine Democratic Convention is thus regarded in New York. The Commercial Advertiser says:—

"Make such an issue practical, and our blatant friends of Down East would soon cry out against the taxation by which the money now received by the revenue laws would be secured. The fact is, this Maine deliverance is only for effect. It is a prodigious explosion of breath, a beating of the Coliseum's big drum, a mere voice, and nothing else, but it is accepted by the World as a sure presage of victory."

The Tribune has this comment:

"Some of the resolutions of the Democratic State Convention in Maine, yesterday, were very sound. Some of them, like that on Civil Service reform, were mere empty words, and the one denouncing a protective tariff as a means of raising revenue, and declaring unequivocally for absolute free trade, illustrates the length to which irresponsible people are likely to go. If these Maine Democrats had the least chance of doing what they propose, they would as soon think of thrusting their fingers into the fire as of imposing direct taxes on the people for the purpose of raising the revenue which now comes from the tariff they denounce."

THE DISTRICT GOVERNMENT. The Congressional Joint Committee appointed to prepare and submit, at the next session, a form of government for the District of Columbia, which is composed of Senators Morrill of Maine and Hamilton of Maryland, with Representatives Hoar of Massachusetts and Kasson of Wisconsin, are exchanging opinions concerning the work before them. When they have agreed upon a plan of action they will return to their respective homes to study the question, and meet in the fall fully acquainted with the question, to deliberate and decide.

The number of bills which became laws during the last session of Congress were Senate bills, 131, and House bills, 434.

Dr. SCHENCK'S

Pulmonic Syrup, Sea Weed Tonic, and Mandrake Pills.

These medicines have undoubtedly performed more cures of Consumption than any other remedy known to the American public. They are compounded of vegetable ingredients, and contain nothing which can be injurious to the human constitution.

Other remedies advertised as cures for Consumption, probably contain opium, which is a somewhat dangerous drug in all cases, and if taken freely by consumptive patients, it must do great injury; for its tendency is to confine the morbid matter in the system, which, of course, must make a cure impossible.

Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup is warranted not to contain a particle of opium. It is composed of powerful but harmless herbs, which act on the lungs, liver, stomach and blood, and thus correct all morbid secretions, and expel all the diseased matter from the body. These are the only means by which Consumption can be cured, and as Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Sea Weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the only medicines which operate in this way, it is obvious they are the only genuine cure for Pulmonary Consumption. Each bottle of this invaluable medicine is accompanied by full directions.

Dr. Schenck is professionally at his principal office, corner Sixth and Arch Streets, Philadelphia, every Monday, and at the Quincy House, Boston, on the following Wednesdays, June 10th and 24th, July 8th and 22d, and August 5th and 19th.

Pierce's Rheumatic Cure

A Tried and Sure Cure.

This remedy is the result of the research of one of the proprietors who had been a great sufferer for years, and who had tried all the advertised remedies and the skill of many physicians without obtaining relief. A radical cure was obtained, and numerous similar cures effected among his friends and acquaintances, without an exception, have induced him to put it before the public. It was got up without a thought of making it an article of merchandise, but the numerous and increasing demands for it, as its merits have become known, have induced him to advertise it for the benefit of sufferers like himself.

It is an infallible remedy, if persistently used, for those painful maladies of Rheumatism and Neuralgia as testimonials, too abundant to give in this advertisement, will show. Among these testimonials are those of Mrs. Judge Appleton, E. M. Talcott, J. M. Morrill, (foreman of Hinckley and Holt's Foundry) G. H. Emery, and others of Bangor; W. J. Mitchell, (of the Exeter House, Moosehead Lake.) Alvardo E. Orcutt, of Eddington, a sufferer for fourteen years, and at times helpless, having tried the best known remedies and three skillful physicians without effect, after using seven bottles, has been restored to health, and gives his grateful testimonial.

It is an internal remedy, acting on the blood, freeing it from impurities and imparting tone and healthy action to the system. It may be used by children and those of the most delicate constitution with perfect safety. Full directions with each bottle.

Price per bottle $1.25. Liberal discount to the trade. For sale by Druggists generally.

THE TILTON SCANDAL—OPINIONS OF THE PAPERS.

Tilton's letter on the Beecher scandal is the universal topic of conversation and this morning draws out comment from the papers that ignored it yesterday.

The Tribune thinks that Tilton has made a mistake even if all he claims is true.

The Sun says that he should have told ... held his tongue altogether, but the ... story must now come out, as silence on the part of Beecher is no longer possible.

THE LETTER OF APOLOGY DENIED

Question—What, if anything, does Mr ... say about the apologetic letter cited by Mr Tilton in which Mr Beecher, after acknowledging his guilt, is made to appear as asking Tilton's pardon?

Answer—If Mr Beecher should conclude that the case requires utterance on his part he will dispose of that letter very effectually. What he thinks of it we are not at liberty to ... at present. This, however, we will say on our own account, that Mr Beecher never wrote any such letter, that Mr. Tilton knows he did not, and that there is no such letter in existence.

Question—Is there any truth in the statement that Mr Beecher authorized any person to offer as the price of silence to send Mr. Tilton and his family to Europe?

Answer—There is not, and we doubt whether Mr. Beecher ever heard of such a thing until it appeared in the letter.

TERRIBLE DEATH FROM HYDROPHOBIA.

Another fearful death from hydrophobia occurred in this city yesterday in the person of Wm. McCormick, a butcher of East 61st street. It is a puzzle for those theorists who maintain that there is no such disease. McCormick was bitten by a small dog a little over a month ago, the wound being only a slight scratch, and he never dreamed of such a thing as hydrophobia until he was attacked Monday. He died in terrible agony last evening. Many eminent physicians attended the victim in his last hours and a report on the case will probably be made.

Mr. Hale has not yet definitely decided to accept.

CIRCULAR FROM TREASURER SPINNER REGARDING DEPOSITS OF U. S. NOTES BY NATIONAL BANKS.

Treasurer Spinner has issued a circular respecting the deposits of United States notes by National Banks for the redemption of their circulating notes as required by sections 2 and 3 of the Currency bill, approved June 20. Every National Bank (national gold banks excepted) is required to cause to be deposited in the Treasurer's office an amount of United States notes equal to five per centum of its circulation. In estimating the circulation upon which the percentage is required, there must be included notes of its own issue in possession of the bank, as well as those in actual circulation, and there should also be included any amount that may have been returned to the Comptroller of the Currency by the bank, and for which it is to receive new currency. United States notes may be sent to the Treasurer under contract of the Treasury Department with Adams' Express, and under the same regulations as are prescribed for the forwarding of notes and currency of the United States, for redemption. The expenses of transportation will be paid by the Department, which will hereafter be reimbursed for such expenses. If any bank shall prefer, it may forward the required amount by a draft on New York, Boston or Philadelphia to the order of the Treasurer of the United States, and payable in United States notes. If so drawn and paid in such notes, credit will be given to the bank when collected. If payment is not made in United States notes, the draft will be returned to the bank, and deposit of such notes required to be made by the express acknowledgment to be made to each bank for its deposit, when completed by remittance to it of a certificate in the proper form.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

Hon. D. W. Voorhees of Indiana has announced that he will not accept a nomination for Congress.

The present session of the Massachusetts Legislature is the longest on record.

Comptroller Green's revised estimates say that the expenses of New York city for the year 1874 are $32,336,050, or five millions inside the estimate allowance, which reduces the taxation from 3.40 to 2.93 per cent.

The Democrats of the 1st Ohio District are said to be unanimously in favor of sending the Hon. George H. Pendleton to Congress, with a view to placing him on the track for the Presidential nomination.

The Utica Observer refuses to retract its assertion that Senator Fenton said he had Senator "Conkling by the throat," etc. It promises, as soon as a single seal of secrecy is removed, to lay the evidence before the public.

The Prince of Wales recently dined with the Benchers of the Middle Temple in their magnificent hall in London. In the course of his speech, the Prince said it was a good thing for the profession and the public that he had never been called to the bar, for he would not have been a brilliant ornament to it.

With regard to the next New York Senatorship, the Graphic says that Governor Dix and Judge Church have friends, but the admirers of Judge Pierrepont and of William M. Evarts are particularly discreet and significantly silent when approached on the subject. George William Curtis is frequently mentioned in connection with the office.

They do say that General Butler would not run for Governor or Congress, but would go quietly to Europe for a long rest, this Fall, if he were not constantly told that he cannot have either office. His friends say that when he is told he can't, why then he feels as though he must put on his spurs and demonstrate to his own satisfaction whether he can or not.—Boston Globe.

The Grand Jury of the U. S. Circuit Court, Washington, found an indictment against A. C. Buell for defamation of character, in that as correspondent of the Detroit Free Press he procured to be printed a few months ago, in that journal, a statement that Senator Chandler, of Michigan, had been helped from the floor of the Senate, in open session, in a state of intoxication.

CREMATION. A Leipsic professor has just invented a style of cremation which is indorsed by the authorities as "simple, pious and cheap." The body is lowered into a smoothly-walled oven, containing no other object. Nothing touches it but the air, heated to a white glow intensity, the oxygen of which combines with the atoms of the organic structure. Only the ashes remain, and these can be gathered up unmixed with foreign substances. The cost of disposing of a deceased friend by this method is only about two dollars. An architect is now building one of the patent ovens in Dresden, and if it proves satisfactory, the communes of both Leipsic and Dresden have declared their readiness to adopt the system.

A Washington report is to the effect that ... ... Maryland ... ...

... ized by law to remove the National Bank of Hagerstown there as a basis for his new concern. Another rumor makes him a candidate for the vacant mission to Austria, which ex Senator Nye's friends have worked hard but unsuccessfully to obtain for him.

THE BAND CONCERT given from the balcony of the Penobscot Exchange last evening drew out large numbers of our citizens, who thronged the sidewalks and every available doorway, while at the same time the street was filled with carriages. He proposes to at once erect a new store on the vacant lot and will alter and improve the two store fronts so that the three will be uniform, and an ornament to the street.

NARROW ESCAPE. Yesterday afternoon William Connolly was driving through West Market square with a load of household furniture, which was piled high above his head as he sat on the front of the wagon, when a table and several chairs pitched forward, throwing him on the horse and thence on the cross-bar and shaft of the wagon. The horse jumped and ran, turning up Hammond street, coming so near the stone post on Wood's corner that every one who saw the accident expected to see Connolly's brains dashed out, but he gathered up the reins and stopped the horse, which was held by parties in the street, and he was relieved from his perilous position. It was found on examination that save the smashing of a table and a chair no damage was done.

BANGOR HIGH SCHOOL

GRADUATING EXERCISES OF THE SENIOR CLASS.

The graduating exercises of the class of 1874, of the Bangor High School, took place in City Hall, last evening, in the presence of a large audience, which crowded every part of the room, all the seats in the galleries and on the floor being filled, while many people stood during the whole evening. The night was sultry, and the dense crowd suffered from heat and bad air, which all the open windows could not relieve. One lady fainted, and quite a number were obliged to leave. In view of these facts, as there always is a rush on these occasions, we think it would be wise to hold the graduating exercises in some larger hall.

The stage was occupied by the School Committee, School Agent, Rev. Dr. Field, Rev. Mr. Hazlewood, Mr Dame, Principal of the High School, and his assistant teachers; and on the right, in a double semi circle, sat the graduating class — fourteen charming young ladies (all dressed in white, with blue or rose-colored trimmings) and one young gentleman.

The exercises were opened with a fervent prayer offered by Rev. Mr. Hazlewood, following which Misses Harlow, Johnson and Lincoln of the graduating class played a piano trio—the overture to Tancredi—with much spirit and expression. The Salutatory (in Latin) was delivered by Miss Mary R. Bartlett, with clear, distinct enunciation and correct emphasis. Miss Julia A. Robinson read an essay entitled "Our Other Schools," in which she argued that all the world is a school, and that her class, instead of closing their schooling in graduating here, were, in fact, only commencing to learn the great lessons of life. Miss Ella L. Bartlett's essay treated of the "Companionship of Books" as valuable above measure, and a source of delight, instruction and profit in every stage of life.

Miss Lizzie A. Treat sang the song, "I Dare not Tell," in a very pleasing manner, after which Miss Annie B Burr read an essay entitled "Want Develops Strength," in which she showed, by numerous events in history, that at every crisis in human affairs a "master of the situation" has arisen, and that every emergency brings out new and hitherto unknown powers to meet it. Miss Meda C. Crosby read "The Story of a School-room," the moral of which was that it is unsafe to judge by appearances—that scholars, dull in one department of learning, may be brilliant in others, and that no one knows the capabilities of another until they are developed by time or accident. Miss Annie Martin's essay was entitled "Spectacles," and she showed that everybody views events and persons through spectacles more or less colored—some rose-tinted, some blue, some gray, and some of the smokiest black. Few look through clear crystal, but they see everything in its true light.

Miss Annie Ross sang a serenade very sweetly, and Miss Lizzie A. Treat proceeded to read an essay entitled, "The End not yet," taking the ground that the school course is but a preparation for a life of study, though the study may not be in books. Miss Lue A. Spencer's essay was in verse, and was entitled "Out of the Shell." It was full of charming conceits, wittily expressed, and compared the school-girl's graduation to the emerging of a tender chick from its protecting shell into the cold and inhospitable world.

A brief recess was here taken, after which a ... ... Misses Gertie Murray and May Lincoln. Miss ...

Bella A. Wheelden next read an essay entitled "Dare to Differ," in which she made an able plea for independence of opinion. Miss Maud Patten's essay was entitled "Drift wood," but, owing to a recent severe illness, she was unable to read it, and was therefore excused. Miss Hattie L. Crowell's essay defined the "Routes to Happiness," and advocated an early start in the right path.

Miss Nellie Chapman next sang Torrey's "La Primavera," which is admirably adapted to show the fine qualities of her well-cultivated voice. "Gold Lies Deep in the Mountains" was the title of Miss Lizzie S. Bishop's essay, and she showed that neither wealth nor education can be obtained without labor, and that it is only by exertion that eminence can be attained. Mr. Frank H. Clergue, the only young gentleman in the class, declaimed Schiller's "Diver" with much spirit and fine effect. He was followed by Miss Nellie M. Lincoln, whose essay, entitled, "Immortal Photographs," presented the idea, in graceful language, that the record of each day of our lives is indelibly photographed, not only upon our own memories, but upon the minds of others, and, above all, in the great book of the recording angel, and that all should so live that the pictures will always be pleasant to look back upon.

Miss Dora H. Wiley sang, "When Sparrows Build," with the taste and expression which marks all her vocalism; after which Miss Mary R. Bartlett read a finely-written poetical essay, which answered the query of the title, "What Good Does all this Study Do?" by citing the advantages that learning gives. The Valedictory, by Miss Lettie Harlow, closed the exercises of the graduating class. She took as her subject "Nulla Dies sine Linea," and urged her companions to bear in mind that, as no day passes without its mark, they should not cease, with their departure from school-life, their efforts for improvement and culture. She bade her classmates and teachers a tender farewell, and the class, gathering at the piano, sang a touching parting song, written by one of their number.

The essays were all of an unusually high order, well written, and displaying unmistakable ability on the part of the authors. Each was warmly applauded by the audience.

Judge Godfrey, with a few appropriate remarks, presented the graduates with their well-earned diplomas, following which Rev. Dr. Field addressed them briefly on their duties and responsibilities in the future, and dismissed them with a benediction.

The class held a reception and sociable in the hall after the close of the exercises, which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT.

EASTERN DISTRICT LAW TERM.

Friday, June 26th. The four following cases, which came up on report, were argued together, depending upon substantially the same principles of law.—

Maine Mutual Marine Insurance Company vs. Eben Blunt et al.

Stetson, Paine and A. A. Strout for pliffs, and McCrillis, Wilson & Woodard and Rowe for defts.

The several defendants gave their notes to the Merchants Mutual Marine Insurance Co., at its organization, for one thousand dollars each, payable at a day certain and took out "open policies" of insurance. The notes were never negotiated, and the company having become insolvent, they fell into the hands of the plaintiffs, as receivers, who claim to recover the full amount of them as statute securities, under the charter of the company, which provides that they might receive notes for advance premiums for the better security of all concerned.

The defendants claim that they are premium notes on their "open policies," and that there is due on them severally only such amounts as are endorsed on said policies.

Emma A. Jenks for part. vs. Mason A. Walton. On exceptions by deft. Submitted on briefs.

Laughton — J. H. Hilliard

Chas D. Chapman vs Mary Rich. Report of facts on nonsuit. Action on account annexed, with count for money had and received, for support of defendant's child three years, from nine to twelve years of age, under a verbal agreement that the child was to stay with the plaintiff till of age for her support and schooling. At the end of three years the defendant took away her child. The writ also contained a count for money had and received.

Defendant took the ground that plaintiff could not recover because there was no written indenture binding the child to plaintiff, and cited R. S. chap. 62, secs. 2—

Chapman & Donigan. — McCrillis.

John P. Bent vs. Waldo T Peirce. On motion by defendant to set aside verdict with report of evidence and for newly-discovered evidence. Trover for two notes, amounting to $1,230, which defendant got possession of and refused to give up on demand. Defendant claimed to be joint owner of notes as partner of plaintiff. The jury found that there was no partnership, and defendant finds new testimony and asks permission to try another verdict.

MURRAY'S CIRCUS.—John H. Murray's Great Railroad Circus will exhibit in Bangor July 3 and 4th, performances being given both afternoon and evening. On the 4th, a special morning performance will be given at 10 o'clock. Mr Murray has but lately completed an engagement in Boston, and the following commendation of his Company and management is from the columns of the Daily News of that city, a ... journal which ... the ... advertises the local places of amusement

"One of the most ... and attractive of the ... entertainments is Mr. John H. Murray's Railroad Circus, now exhibiting on the Coliseum grounds, and before we mention the performances an allusion to the proprietor and his well organized troupe will not be out of place. A short chat with Mr. Murray revealed at once the perfect gentleman, and a man of very extensive travel, well versed in the peculiarities of human nature, a close observer, and a keen financier, yet with no approach to meanness. The organization of the company is perfect, every department has its superintendent, and every subordinate knows what his especial duties are, and performs them well. We were struck with the ... of the whole company, performers, ... horses, harness, and the ... throughout, while a still more ... feature was the perfect decorum. Not a word of profanity, vulgarity or ... was heard, ... in a quiet and unassuming manner. The performers were among the best appearing, most intelligent, and gentlemanly we have seen in the profession, and with the whole, hearty and happy appearance ... attention. Men and ... they were well fed. Mr. Chas. ... Day, Superintendent of one of the departments, very politely showed us the workings of everything behind the curtain, and gave us ... details which would ... the public ... we time and space to give them. The performance opened with the grand entree in ... the encampment, which is a somewhat ... attractive feature, Mr. Murray himself ... the perfect horseman, while ... accompanied him ... the best ... in the saddle. Mr. Woods Cook must be considered the best rider and somersault performer that ... been in this city. His performances were marvelous, both on horseback and off, while his double somersault over ... horses would seem incredible unless witnessed. He is a fine looking, healthy specimen of a human being. Mr. Wm. Fredericks and his sister, Miss Emma ... from Hengler's Royal Cirque of England, and their conjunctive act of riding and balancing was truly wonderful, while the bounding jockey by Mr Fredericks could not be surpassed. Mlle Louise ... is an accomplished ... rider ... She appears ... and ... performances are characterized by ... and modesty and propriety. She acts well her part, both in the ring and out, and is one of the best in her profession.

Mr. James L. Goone, the daring ... one of ... the first performers in the troupe. The ease and skill with which he controls the animals is intensely interesting, and his own movements ... the ... of equestrian grace.

Mr. John Cottrell is one of the most ... performers of the troupe. His feats upon the rolling globe with ... and other implements, have been ... hard labor, and are truly ...

Mr. John LeClaire performed with the bottles and chairs in balancing super of to all his rivals, while Mr. Fred LeClaire lost no honors in his wonderful performances of ... Mr. Tom Burry and Signor Almonte as clowns were especially wise, witty, and wonderful. There are many performers we should like to speak of, whose acts were worthy of mention, but space will not allow. As a whole it is the best circus that has visited Boston for a great while. There is nothing to offend the most fastidious, and the performances are distinguished by promptness and perfection. The horses are among the best we have seen. Black Eagle, Mr. Murray's favorite horse, valued at $5,000, is a perfect specimen of equine beauty. We might allude to many others, but it is not necessary. The audiences at these performances are composed of the best classes of our citizens, many ladies and children availing themselves of the opportunities afforded by the matinees, and in the evening, the crowds that flock to the canvas amphitheatre are so large that it is necessary to go early to secure seats. Last evening the attendance was so great that many were unavoidably turned away.

LIKE ME.

BY MRS. M. F. BUTTS

What would happen, do you suppose,
If the mignonette should say to the rose,
"The style of roses I hate to see,
Why don't you keep near the ground like me?"

What if the rose should say to the phlox,
"My form and color are orthodox—
To please your Maker, you've got to be,
Precisely in all respects like me."

What if a grape should say to a pear
"Why are you dangling about up there?
Beware of swinging alone and free,
You ought to cling to a trellis, like me."

What if a river should say to a rill
"If you weren't too lazy you'd turn a mill.
Study my method, and try to be,
A rushing, roaring river like me."

What if a swan should say to a crow
"You belong to the race of so-and-so,
It is a deadly sin for you to be free,
Your only hope is in serving me."

What if a goose should teach a wren?
Or an eagle try to follow a hen!
What if the monkeys should all agree,
That there ought to be uniformity!

What if a man should say to another
"Differ with me and you're not my brother,
I have the truth as the oracle tell,
Go with me or you'll go to hell!"

Life Without Enjoyment.

No human being whose stomach and liver are disordered can enjoy life. Business is a fatigue and a bore, and all amusements "flat and unprofitable," to the victim of indigestion, biliousness, and disturbances of the bowels and the nerves which always accompany them. The shortest, surest, safest way to get rid of these evils, and of the mental despondency which grows out of them, is to tone and regulate the system with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Of all stimulants it is the purest, of all vegetable tonics the most active, of all cathartics the mildest, of all anti-bilious preparations the most swift and certain in its operation. During the twenty odd years that it has been in use it has lived down professional prejudice, distanced competition, and taken rank as the standard restorative of the age.

INTERESTING CORRESPONDENCE.

T. S. LAMBERT, M D ,

Dear Sir —Learning that you are to be in town for a day or two, we take this opportunity of asking you to address us and others upon the subjects to which you have given special attention, we mean—The Nature of Life, the Biometry, and Signs of Longevity of Human Life, and particularly their application to Life Insurance.

Respectfully yours,

To Doctors Carpenter, Leecher, Buckley, Beecher, Stacy, Bordwell and Holden.

Gentlemen —Nothing would please me more than to accept your invitation, but I am just now so positively engaged that I cannot at present spend more time in Albany. If you will specify an evening a week or two hence, I shall and will very gladly reciprocate your politeness and do my best to entertain you upon the very interesting and exceedingly important subjects which you mention.

Very respectfully and truly yours,

T S. LAMBERT, M D

Albany, March 16th, 1874

In accordance with the foregoing correspondence, and also upon the invitation of the Insurance Committee of the Assembly of the Legislature of New York State, the Lecture, therein referred to, will be given on Wednesday evening, April 1st, in the Assembly Chamber.

(From the Albany Argus)

DR LAMBERT UPON "BIOMETRY."

The crowded state of our columns in yesterday's issue compelled us to defer notice of Dr. Lambert's address before the committee of the Legislature, on Wednesday evening. The house was crowded by an attentive audience, including members of the medical fraternity, the bar and the clergy, and other professional men. The scope of the lecture was to present, in some of its leading principles and features, the subject of "Biometry," or the laws of hereditary descent, and the signs and indications of longevity, as a science, positive, practicable, and of very great value in its application to all the varied relations of life. He gave practical illustrations referring to strangers in the audience, of the signs and indications of longevity—and stated very clearly and succinctly the laws and principles upon which the science rests. The practical facts noticed by all, of hereditary tendencies, were shown to have relation to the inherent capabilities of living. These conditions can all be measured, and a judgment upon them by one who has become even ordinarily expert may be relied upon—especially in determining the proper premiums to be charged in insuring lives. Referring to the "experience" tables in use by the Insurance Companies, their disagreement with each other and their inconsistencies as assumed data were pointed out. It was urged that the only safe and just basis was found in following the teachings of Biometry, and rating each risk upon its own characteristics. The safety, as well as the equity of this was shown in the fact, as an illustration, that in the company with which he is connected (the American Popular), which originated the plan, the death losses have been for the last year only between three and four per thousand persons, while some companies have lost as high as twenty-four, and many over ten per thousand—the varying rates of loss being in themselves a proof of the unreliability of the tables, and of the general average system of insuring all lives of the same age at the same rate. Life insurance, he said, is simply protection of the family in case of the death of its head, and its simple and common sense method is found in the payment, year by year, of the natural premium representing the mortality belonging properly to that year,—the "Term Life Increasing Premium,"—at low cost, without surplus, without "dividends," without speculation, without deception.

Dr. Lambert was appropriately introduced by Dr Carpenter, of the Assembly, and was listened to throughout his long address, with marked attention.

No other company in the world applies these principles, or gives the advantage of a lower rate of premiums to those possessed of the natural inheritance of long life.

The only questions with them are: sound health and the general average mortality of a given age.

The AMERICAN POPULAR, by its gradation of risks, insures each according to the individual characteristics of the risk,

It fixes the premium rate accordingly without any special reference to the age.

Its premiums are based therefore upon the actual risk of the individual; charging him only the cost of carrying his risk.

This is JUST, EQUITABLE and SAFE.

Eight years' experience has proved these facts.

Documents explanatory may be had by calling at Hughes's book store.

APPLETON'S

AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA

New Revised Edition.

Entirely rewritten by the ablest writers on every subject. Printed from new type, and illustrated with Several Thousand Engravings and Maps.

The work originally published under the title of THE NEW AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA was completed in 1863, since which time the wide circulation which it has attained in all parts of the United States, and the signal developments which have taken place in every branch of science, literature, and art, have induced the editors and publishers to submit it to an exact and thorough revision and to issue a new edition entitled THE AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA.

Within the last ten years the progress of discovery in every department of knowledge has made a new work of reference an imperative want.

The movement of political affairs has kept pace with the discoveries of science, and their fruitful application to the industrial and useful arts and the convenience and refinement of social life. Great wars and consequent revolutions have occurred, involving national changes of peculiar moment. The civil war of our own country, which was at its height when the last volume of the old work appeared, has happily been ended, and a new course of commercial and industrial activity has been commenced.

Large accessions to our geographical knowledge have been made by the indefatigable explorers of Africa.

The great political revolutions of the last decade, with the natural result of the lapse of time, have brought into public view a multitude of new men, whose names are in every one's mouth, and of whose lives every one is curious to know the particulars. Great battles have been fought and important sieges maintained, of which the details are as yet preserved only in the newspapers or in the transient publications of the day, but which ought now to take their place in permanent and authentic history.

In preparing the present edition for the press, it has accordingly been the aim of the editors to bring down the information to the latest possible dates, and to furnish an accurate account of the most recent discoveries in science, of every fresh production in literature, and of the newest inventions in the practical arts, as well as to give a succinct and original record of the progress of political and historical events.

The work has been begun after long and careful preliminary labor, and with the most ample resources for carrying it on to a successful termination.

None of the original stereotype plates have been used, but every page has been printed on new type forming in fact a new Cyclopædia, with the same plan and compass as its predecessor, but with a far greater pecuniary expenditure, and with such improvements in its composition as have been suggested by longer experience and enlarged knowledge.

The illustrations which are introduced for the first time in the present edition, have been added not for the sake of pictorial effect, but to give greater lucidity and force to the explanations in the text. They embrace all branches of science and of natural history, and depict the most famous and remarkable features of scenery, architecture, and art, as well as the various processes of mechanics and manufactures. Although intended for instruction rather than embellishment, no pains have been spared to insure their artistic excellence; the cost of their execution is enormous, and it is believed they will find a welcome reception as an admirable feature of the Cyclopædia, and worthy of its high character.

This work is sold to Subscribers only, payable on delivery of each volume. It will be completed in sixteen large octavo volumes, each containing about 800 pages, fully illustrated with several thousand Wood Engravings, and with numerous colored Lithographic Maps.
